

MLA PAPER FORMAT

This is what the first page of a short MLA-style paper looks like. Unless your teacher tells you otherwise, the font should be 12-point Times New Roman or Courier New. Double space the entire paper, including each line of the header and all indented quotations. Do not add an extra space before or after any paragraph.

This is what the “Works Cited” page of an MLA-style paper looks like. Continue double spacing all entries without adding any extra spaces. Continue to number each page as if it were part of your paper. Alphabetize each entry by the last name of the first author. Consult our “MLA Style” handout for help in formatting specific entries.
