

What is TIGERi?

This is the name of our university's enterprise resource planning (ERP) project. TIGERi will be bringing many exciting improvements to the Idaho State University campus by incorporating all human resources/payroll, finance, student, and financial aid information together in a secure, integrated, easy-access environment. This will mean BIG changes for everyone on campus.

What's coming first?

Idaho State University's new portal, BengalWeb, will provide a single point of access for electronic services and information. Portals present information from diverse sources in a unified way. iGoogle and MyYahoo are two portals you might be familiar with. BengalWeb's goals are to:

- Provide a single sign-on, one stop shop for students, faculty, and staff to conduct university business online.
- Increase communication on campus between students, faculty, staff, and administration.
- Serve as an easy access point for all university information and services

As plans currently stand, students will begin using their new web portal sometime next spring. BengalWeb will provide many new opportunities to organize information electronic resources in one location instead of forcing students to look in a variety of different web sites.

One stop, single-sign on access to:

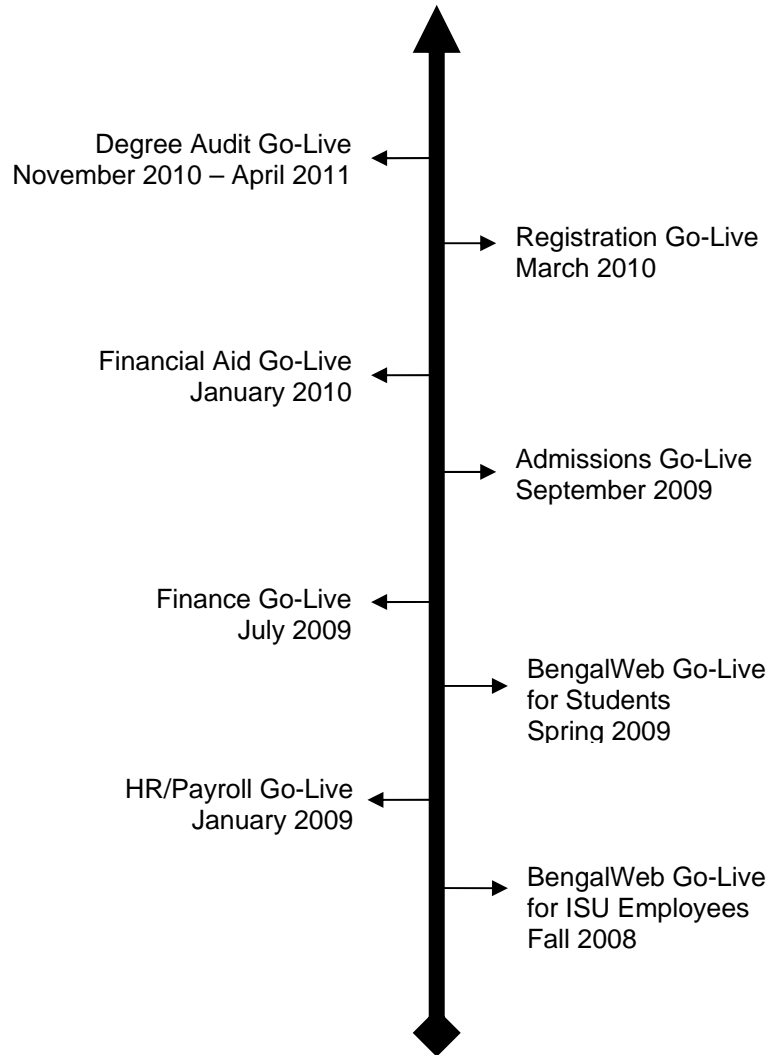

Email, personal calendar, course schedule, university communication, Moodle, Library resources—plus many other exciting features!

In the future...

- Pay fees online! This means no more waiting in lines.
- Group Studio! BengalWeb offers students, faculty, and staff the ability to create and manage group homepages for clubs, workgroups, or committees. Group Studio offers online tools for collaboration, communication, and information sharing.
