

Camp Taylor Cabin Rental

Risk Information for Renters of Camp Taylor Cabins

As the renter of the Camp Taylor cabins, I understand that I have certain responsibilities:

I agree to inform the group using the cabin of the dangers and risks of winter travel and cabin use.

I understand that traveling to the cabins is dangerous. The risks of travel include, but are not limited to: being caught and disoriented in whiteouts or snowstorms, becoming lost and not finding the cabin, falling and colliding with trees, rocks or other objects while skiing or snow shoeing, becoming exhausted while traveling, finding the cabin and its contents damaged, being caught in an avalanche, and developing frost bite or hypothermia. To minimize the risks, I agree to encourage all members of the party to prepare carefully for the trip. I understand the importance of having some of the members of the party well acquainted with the location of the cabin prior to our trip. Even then, I realize that it is possible that the party may not find the cabin, and I will ask everyone to be prepared, if necessary, to spend the night out.

I understand that use of the cabins is dangerous. Other risks associated with cabin use are injuries from use of the bunk beds, propane stove and lantern, splitting mal, axe or other equipment in the cabin.

I understand that the cabin or its contents could be damaged, and I understand that it may be necessary to collect additional fire wood for the wood stove.

I understand that the contents inside the cabinets are locked and I need to obtain the key to the lock the day before my trip.

I understand that cabin rental requires a complete payment of fees that are nonrefundable. If it becomes impossible for a party to use the cabin at their reserved time, credit will be given for a future use in that season. However, the cancelling party must notify the Outdoor Adventure Rental Center at least three (3) days prior to their reservation and credit will be allowed only once. Those who cancel within three (3) days of their reservation will forfeit their fees. Remember only one change is allowed and credit must be used that season. I also understand that it is the responsibility of the cabin user to locate the cabin. Cabin rental fees will not be refunded if the cabin is not located.

I understand that if our group burns wood outside the cabin, I will be charged for another night rental.

I understand that I need to contain my groups activities to the specific cabin I have rented. I will be respectful of other users and leave other facilities alone and not move items from cabin to cabin.

I have made a careful decision that I am willing to accept the policies, inform my group of dangers and assume all risks.
