What are some ideas about how to share our results? As of academic year 2019-2020, ISU requires that all our programs share their results in a brief annual report. Results are a natural part of program reviews and accreditation reports. Non-academic units often prepare annual reports, and they also have periodic program reviews. Below are some additional ideas about who might be interested in your results:

- Alumni or college newsletters
- Donors and the community
- Legislators
- Parents and potential students
- The university community
- Administrators
- Those developing budgets
